

SEARCHING AND RESEARCHING GERMAN>ENGLISH RESOURCES ON THE INTERNET

Jill R. Sommer
Presentation for German Language Division
59th Annual ATA Conference

American Translators Association

Why searching and researching?

- Searching is trying to find something by looking or otherwise seeking carefully and thoroughly, whereas research is the systematic investigation into and study of materials and sources in order to establish facts and reach new conclusions.
- It is important to assess terms and/or information that you might want to use in your translation.

Searching and researching

- Searching effectively online using a variety of search engines and tools
- Combining information from multiple sources, blending online and offline materials to aid research
- Sharing research to collaboratively develop a broader understanding of topics
- Assessing and evaluating information: considering the authority, timeliness and relevance of sources to ensure validity
- Critical thinking: utilizing information and providing context to research to aid the drawing of conclusions

Which search engines do you use most frequently?

There are lots of other options out there

GOOGLE SCHOLAR

This Google service is free to use, and allows you to access millions of academic journal articles online.

GOOGLE BOOKS

This Google service is free to use, and allows you to access millions of books online.

BING IMAGES

Search for images across the web. One of the great features of the Bing image search is that it also gives you information about which images can be re-used in your own work, or online.

EUROPEANA COLLECTIONS

Use Europeana Collections to discover thousands of cultural artworks, artefacts, books, videos and sounds from across museums and galleries in Europe.

WORLDCAT

WorldCat offers a great worldwide service allowing you to search for information in more than 10,000 libraries worldwide.

REFSEEK

Refseek is a new service aiming to filter out general information from your web searches, and prioritise academic sources.

What we search

- Terminology
- Company Web site
- Solutions to technical problems
- Parallel texts and client's competitor Web sites
- Agencies and clients
- E-mail addresses, addresses & phone #s
- Graphics, logos and images

Why use search techniques?

- Find terms
- Verify spellings of names
- Verify addresses
- Verify terms to ensure they are in fact used by your target audience (rima ani vs. intergluteal cleft, region of the gluteus sinistra vs. left gluteal region)
- Check that the information is not outdated
- Be sure any bias is not carried over if the source text does not contain a loaded term.

Understanding how to search

- Search engines are powerful tools, and often a simple keyword search is all that is required to get the results you need.
- Sometimes your search may not return relevant results, or you might have to scan through pages of results to find something useful.
- There are a number of options to help you limit the responses to those most relevant to your search.
- Search engines and databases use Boolean operators (AND, OR and NOT) to allow you to combine search terms in different combinations.

Search operators

- AND (or “+”) reduces the number of results you retrieve and is usually used to combine different concepts to make your results more relevant.
- OR increases the number of results you retrieve and is usually used to combine synonyms to make your results more comprehensive.
- NOT (or “-”) reduces the number of results you retrieve by excluding a search term.

Advanced search options

- You can restrict your search to within a specific website. You can do this directly from the search bar by typing site:yourwebsite or via the site or domain option on the advanced search page.
- You can restrict your search to a specific phrase by putting the search terms in quotation marks in the search bar or via the this exact word or phrase option on the advanced search page.
- You can limit your search results to pages published or updated within a specific time-frame. You can do this by typing the years you want separated by “..”, or in Google from the search tools option directly beneath the search bar; then click any time, then custom range.

Advanced search options

- You can limit your search to results of a specific file type directly from the search bar by typing (for example) filetype:pdf or via the file type option on the advanced search page.
- Wildcard characters can also prove useful – you can use the asterisk to search for words which begin with the same letters.
- The question mark wildcard is often used to search for alternative spellings.
- intitle: and intext: search the title of a webpage and the text of a webpage. Example: intitle:German translator
- Search by location (country: ) allows you to choose the country of the results. Example: de:Bayer

Use multiple sources

- It is a good practice to verify your findings using another source.
- You can use sources found offline, such as a book or magazine in a library, but it's quickest to verify it using source text subject matter sites.
- Learning how to combine information from different sources is an important part of being an independent and critical thinker, as well as a good researcher.
- If you only use one site (or source) you may only get a one-sided view.
- Always remain wary of the source of the information and the motives of the author, as the Internet is full of false information.

Metasearch Tools

- It is important to look in more than one search engine when trying to find relevant Web pages.
- For this purpose, meta-search tools were created
- Meta-search tools allow you to use several search engines simultaneously

Wikipedia – International English https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/International\_English

Research on English as a lingua franca in the sense of "English in the Expanding Circle" is comparatively recent. Linguists who have been active in this field are Jennifer Jenkins, Barbara Seidlhofer, Christiane Meierkord and Joachim Grzega.

English as a lingua franca in foreign language teaching [\[edit\]](#)

See also: English as a foreign or second language and English as a lingua franca

English as an additional language (EAL) is usually based on the standards of either American English or British English as well as incorporating foreign terms. English as an international language (EIL) is EAL with emphasis on learning different major dialect forms; in particular, it aims to equip students with the linguistic tools to communicate internationally.<sup>[7]</sup> Roger Nunn considers different types of competence in relation to the teaching of English as an International Language, arguing that linguistic competence has yet to be adequately addressed in recent considerations of EIL.<sup>[8]</sup>

Several models of "simplified English" have been suggested for teaching English as a foreign language:

- Basic English, developed by Charles Kay Ogden (and later also I. A. Richards) in the 1930s; a recent revival has been initiated by Bill Templer
- Threshold Level English, developed by van Ek and Alexander
- Globish, developed by Jean-Paul Nerrière
- Basic Global English, developed by Joachim Grzega

Furthermore, Randolph Quirk and Gabriele Stein thought about a Nuclear English, which, however, has never been fully developed.

With reference to the term "Globish", Robert McCrum has used this to mean "English as global language". Jean-Paul Nerrière uses it for a constructed language.

Basic Global English [\[edit\]](#)

Basic Global English, or BGE, is a concept of global English initiated by German linguist Joachim Grzega. It evolved from the idea of creating a type of English that can be learned more easily than regular British or American English and that serves as a tool for successful global communication. BGE is guided by creating "empathy and tolerance" between speakers in a global context. This applies to the context of global communication, where different speakers with different mother tongues come together. BGE aims to develop this competence as quickly as possible.

English language teaching is almost always related to a corresponding culture, e. g. learners will either deal with American English and therefore with American culture or British English and therefore with British culture. Basic Global English is supposed to solve this problem by creating one collective version of English. Additionally, it is a system that is suited for self-teaching as well as regular teaching.

Die Lücke zwischen den mittlerweile veralteten Wörterbüchern und dem neuen MWB will Gerhard Köblers Wörterbuch schließen. Es soll "den gesamten Wortschatz der mittelhochdeutschen Sprache aufgrund der bisherigen Literatur als einfache, streng alphabetisch geordnete Einheit erfassen. Hierfür setzt es eine auf der tatsächlichen Überlieferung aufbauende, gleichwohl aber (orthographisch) normalisierende Homonyme durch eingeklammerte Zahlenangaben individualisierende Hauptform jedes aufgrund seiner Bestandteile bestimmten Stichworts an, wie sie am ehesten der lautlichen Entwicklung vom Althochdeutschen zum Neuhochdeutschen entspricht."

Exophthalmos

Definition

When there is an increase in the volume of the tissue behind the eyes, the eyes will appear to bulge out of the face. The terms exophthalmos and proptosis apply. Proptosis can refer to any organ that is displaced forward, while exophthalmos refers just to the eyes.

Description

The eye socket (orbit) is made of bone and therefore will not yield to increased pressure within it. Only forward displacement of the eyeball (globe) will allow more room if tissue behind the eye is increasing.

Causes and symptoms

The most common cause of exophthalmos is Graves' disease, overactivity of the thyroid gland. The contents of the orbits swell due to inflammation, forcing the eyes forward. The inflammation affects primarily the muscles. This combination of

Englischer Begriff

Transverse arch

Definition

Knöchern präformierte nach dorsal konvexe Wölbung des Mittelfußes in Höhe der Tarsometatarsalgelenke.

Beschreibung

Unter dem Quergewölbe des Fußes versteht man die in Höhe der Tarsometatarsalgelenke ausgeprägte nach dorsal konvexe Form des Fußskeletts. Dieses ist durch die asymmetrische knöcherne Formgebung der Ossa cuneiformia und der Metatarsalbasen vorgegeben und deshalb auch unter Belastung vorhanden. Neben straffen ligamentären Verbindungen wird das Quergewölbe muskulär u. a. durch den M. peroneus longus und den M. tibialis posterior unterstützt. Ein „distales Quergewölbe“ in Höhe der Mittelfußköpfe gibt es nicht. Die zentralen Mittelfußknochen befinden sich sowohl am entlasteten als auch am belasteten Fuß nahezu in einer Ebene.
